Dear reader,

The crucial first stop reference source for researching the world of academic study

The World List of Universities is unquestionably the most authoritative reference for information on further education establishments and courses available throughout the world.

Compiled by the IAU (International Association of Universities) this publication derives its data from the relevant Ministry of Education native to each country, therefore, the accuracy of the information found in the World List of Universities is validated by the most reputable source.

Published on a biennial basis, the 21st edition of this internationally renowned publication, includes 1,000 brand new entries, which means you can now access information on 11,700 institutions in this 1149 page publication - your crucial first stop reference source for everyone researching international academic establishments and courses of study.

Furthermore, the extensive contact details are now complemented by the addition of world wide web addresses, giving you immediate direct access to the institution of your choice.

To find out more about this publication, simply read the enclosed brochure. Should you wish to check out our claims for yourself you are free to order the book on approval and return it to us without obligation, if in the unlikely event you are unhappy with its contents (UK only).

Finally, if you order your copy before 30 November 1997 you can SAVE £10 on the price of your personal copy of the World List of Universities so do not delay, order your copy now by filling in the coupon on the enclosed flyer or calling our order hotline on +44 (0)171 881 8027.

The Grants Register – 1998 Edition

The most comprehensive guide to postgraduate grants and professional funding worldwide. 2,850 awards listed. Available in CD-ROM and print format

2,850 awards listed.

A wealth of information in one hardback for under £100

(also available in CD-ROM format)

The Grants Register 1998 continues its international appeal to existing students, students of the future and those working within academic institutions and research establishments. It continues to provide exhaustive information on postgraduate and professional funding throughout the world.

For ease of use, The Grants Register is divided into five sections:

- Subject and Eligibility Guide to Awards
- The Grants Register
- Index of Awards
- Index of Discontinued Awards
- Index of Awarding Organisations

How do I find the information I need?

- Awards can be located through the Subject and Eligibility Guide to Awards. This section allows the user to find information on a specific award within a specific subject area.
- The Grants Register uses a list of subjects endorsed by the International Association of Universities (the information centre of higher education, located in Paris).
- Eligibility for an award is listed by nationality. Thereafter, awards are listed alphabetically within their designated category.

Public libraries, students and all individuals involved in the pursuit of finance for further education should own a copy of The Grants Register – the most comprehensive, competitively priced publication available. Order your copy today.

World List of Universities: 21st edition

An authoritative work produced by one of the world's foremost organisations in higher education: The International Association of Universities.

The World List of Universities provides instant access to information on nearly 12,000 universities and institutes of higher education in 179 countries worldwide, including the US and Canada. There are 1,000 new entries and now, for the first time, World Wide Web addresses are included where available.

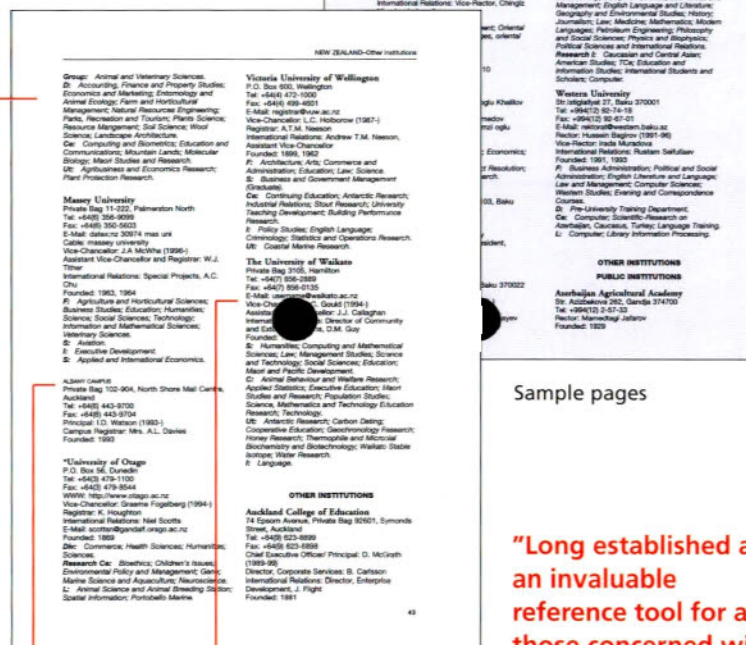

Unlike some directories of higher education, every university and college included in the World List is a degree-granting institution. Additionally, at the end of each country's section is a list of the national academic bodies/associations. The institution's name appears in English with the local language equivalent beneath.

Details covered in the World List entries include:

- address
- telephone and fax numbers • e-mail and World Wide Web addresses
- President/head of institution's name • other senior officers' names, e.g. international relations officer
- areas of study
- year of founding
- list of faculties, colleges, schools, institutions and centres within the institution.

The World List contains a wealth of information at a reasonable price and has many uses for many people:

- Students use the World List to select suitable universities for study
- Career officers, study abroad counsellors, foreign student advisors and deans find it valuable in helping to counsel students
- Registrars and administrators rely upon it to reach other universities
- Government officials need it to keep in touch with their counterparts around the world
- Professionals researching higher education use it as a quick source of reference

The International Association of Universities

This essential reference work has now reached its twenty-first edition. The compiler, the International Association of Universities, was established in 1950 to further worldwide co-operation in higher education, and published the 1st edition of the International List in 1952. Behind the IAU databases in Paris lie thousands of higher education institutes and government bodies acting in concert to establish global links and exchange academic information. This is why the World List has provided the most accurate, authoritative and comprehensive directory of higher education available for over 44 years.

Enlarged and revised continuously since it was first published, the 21st edition contains almost 1,000 new entries, along with up-to-date contact details, staff and faculty changes for all institutions

To order your personal copy simply complete the coupon overleaf and send it to the FREEPOST address detailed (UK only). For service you can either call our priority hotline on +44 (0) 171 881 8027, fax us on +44 (0) 171 881 8022 OR email us on macdir@macmillan.co.uk
