Dear Sir/Madam,

I was wondering whether someone in your institution could help me- I am conducting research into education in South East Asia and am looking for the answers to the following questions

1. Which subject areas are growing in S.E. Asian Education?
2. Who funds education in the various S.E. Asian countries?
3. How libraries within S.E. Asian universities go about finding out about and purchasing material and what information sources they use- i.e. bulletin boards, web pages e.t.c.?

I don't know if you can help me or know anyone who might- I would be immensely grateful for any information you can provide

I look forward to hearing from you soon

Many Thanks

Dear Professor Umaly

Commonwealth Universities Yearbook 1997-98 and ACU Database Update
Inter-University Bodies

I am writing to ask for your co-operation in providing an update of the entry on your organisation for inclusion in the forthcoming edition of the Yearbook, and for entry on the ACU database.

I would be grateful if you could have the enclosed printed output revised (entering the amendments in the right margin), and return the 'copy' to us as soon as possible, but at the latest by 5 June. If you return your update by fax please also post the originals to us - by airmail from outside the UK - in case the faxed version does not transmit clearly.

In addition to the address details, etc, please include information (if applicable) as appropriate to your organisation under the following standardised headings: Principal Officers; Staff; Profile (a brief description of the organisation's functions); Mission; History; Structure; Membership; Funding; Associated Agencies; Relations with Government; Relations with Other Agencies; Information (a brief description of any library or information service provided by the organisation); Publications.

Name entries for staff are shown in the standardised style in use throughout the Yearbook: main element (under which the name will be indexed) coming first, followed by title (if any), a first name in full, other initial(s), degrees with their awarding institutions, and gender where this information is available. (Please note that it is not intended to publish gender in Yearbook entries; it is being collected for approved information and statistical purposes only.)

As part of the address information a short statement on the structure of e-mail addresses at your organisation should be included, if possible, to give readers a formula from which to construct an individual staff member's address (eg initial.surname@organisation.type.country).

We look forward to receiving your revised entry very soon. Thank you for your assistance.

Yours sincerely

Profile

The Association of Universities of Asia and the Pacific was formed in response to a recognition of the need to relate education to the life and aspirations of the people of the Asian and Pacific regions, and to preserve and enhance the cultural, social and economic development of society. The members of the Association co-operate at the regional level in order to contribute to the improvement of national systems of higher education, and to develop human resources and mutual understanding. The diversity of its membership constitutes a resource which can be drawn upon to the advantage of all concerned, especially for the development of individual institutions' teaching, research and service functions. In all its activities the Association strives to complement those of other international, sub-regional and national bodies concerned with higher education.

Mission

The Association's main objectives are: to discharge more effectively the responsibility for providing higher education and training, to extend the frontiers of knowledge and contribute actively to the well-being of the community, to develop human resources, to preserve and enhance the cultural heritage thereby serving the cause of socio-economic development and peace;

to promote wider understanding of the value and importance of these basic goals; to strengthen the institutional capacity for serving society; to co-operate with university bodies at the international, national, regional and sub-regional levels, as well as with inter-governmental, governmental and private bodies concerned with higher education; to implement programmes which will assist in the development of the Association's member institutions, whether financed by the members themselves or by other funding agencies.

History

The Association was formed by an assembly in conference of the universities' representatives at Suranaree University of Technology, Nakhon Ratchasima, Thailand, on 28 July 1995.

Structure

The general conference of the Association meets at least once every two years at the time and place determined at its preceding meeting. The president and vice-president, who remain in office for a single term of two years, are elected by the general conference. The board controls the activities of the secretariat, appoints the secretary-general, approves or amends the Association's annual work programme and budget presented by the secretary-general, and prepares the agenda of the general conference, which includes the programme to be followed until the next meeting of the general conference. The advisory council advises the board and the general conference on matters relating to the purposes of the Association. The secretariat collects and disseminates documentary material and other information relevant to member institutions; promotes collaborative research and other contact among the researchers of the region; promotes exchanges and other movements of university staff and students; and undertakes such other tasks as are compatible with the aims of the Association.

Membership

161 institutions in the Asia and Pacific region.

Dear Professor Wichit

Commonwealth of Learning Credit Bank Project

Last month, I wrote inviting you to comment, by 29 November 1996, on proposals for a Commonwealth "Credit Bank".

Despite the very short timescale, a number of responses were received by the deadline, and the project team has now met to consider these. The responses received have raised some important issues, and will be very helpful to the team in developing its proposals. However, it is clear that the original timescale for response was unrealistic: some of those consulted have indicated that they could not meet the deadline, while some of those who did reply would have found it helpful to have more time for reflection or consultation.

The project team has therefore decided to reschedule the project in order to allow more time for response to the consultative paper. The team will be meeting again in the first week of January 1997, and will be able to consider comments received by the end of December 1996.

If this extension of the consultative period makes it possible for you to reply, or to add to comments which you have already sent, the project team would be very pleased to hear from you. Please respond to the project team leader Chris Batten, at the United Kingdom Open University; contact details are given above.

I realise that it would have been more convenient to have a longer consultative period initially, but I hope that you will feel that the extension is helpful. The project team is very grateful to those who have already responded, and would welcome any further contributions.

Yours sincerely
